Westminster Parliamentary Questions

Immigrants: Employment

Kris Hopkins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what research her Department has (a) commissioned and (b) published on the performance of immigrants in the UK labour market in the last five years. [56661]

Reply from Damian Green: In the last five years the Home Office has not specifically commissioned research on the performance of migrants in the UK labour market.

However, the Government have asked the Migration Advisory Committee (MAC) to advise it on policy frameworks. As a part of its work the MAC has published reports that describe the performance of migrants in the UK labour market in recent years. These reports are available on their website at:

Visas

Lord Laird: To ask Her Majesty's Government, further to the Written Answer by Baroness Neville-Jones on 16 February (WA 201), what are the relevant statutory guidelines that enable time spent in the United Kingdom on a student visa to count towards the residence requirements for naturalisation as a British citizen.[HL9210]

Reply from the Minister of State, Home Office (Baroness Browning): The residence requirements for naturalisation as a British citizen are in Schedule 1 to the British Nationality Act 1981. These provide that a person should have been in the United Kingdom for a qualifying period of three or five years, with a limit on the number of days that should have been spent outside the UK. That schedule provides that presence in the United Kingdom should have been legal, but does not specify that a person should have been here in a particular capacity.

Entry Clearances: Appeals

Nicholas Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many appeals there have been against refusal for family visitor visas in each year since 2002. [56676]

Reply from Damian Green: There have been the following number of appeals against the refusal of visit visas for family members in each year since 2002:

	Number of appeals
2002-03	9,856
2003-04	16,884
2004-05	30,643
2005-06	58,495
2006-07	50,065
2007-08	64,669
2008-09	62,050
2009-10	63,405

<http://www.publications.parliament.uk/pa/cm201011/cmhansrd/cm110524/text/110524w0001.htm#11052477000051>

Entry Clearances: Overseas Students

Jonathan Lord: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what representations her Department has received on its decision to introduce a temporary limit on confirmations of acceptance for studies allocations for colleges which do not meet accreditation and inspection criteria prior to finalising the definition of those criteria; and if she will make a statement. [57049]

Reply from Damian Green: The UK Border Agency has received nine pre-action protocols in relation to the Tier 4 interim limit. The agency does not centrally record all forms of representations received. To provide the information requested against the criteria required could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

<http://www.publications.parliament.uk/pa/cm201011/cmhansrd/cm110524/text/110524w0001.htm#11052477000052>

Immigration and Asylum

Overseas Students

Gareth Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether she plans to allow universities to accept students from outside the EU for the 2011-12 academic year on the basis of the English language criteria advertised prior to 20 March 2011; and if she will make a statement. [57269]

Reply from Damian Green: Changes to the student route were announced on 22 March following a public consultation. Amendments to the Immigration Rules were laid on 31 March, coming into force on 21 April. These amendments introduced some changes to the requirements in English language proficiency needed to obtain a student visa. The new rules do not apply to Certificates of Acceptance of Studies issued before 21 April. The new rules contain a number of important flexibilities for students at universities.

<http://www.publications.parliament.uk/pa/cm201011/cmhansrd/cm110524/text/110524w0001.htm#11052477000060>

Asylum Seekers

Lord Laird: To ask Her Majesty's Government, further to the Written Answer by Lord Wallace of Saltaire on 10 May (WA 198-200), how many of the 11,400 Indians and 4,690 Jamaicans who have applied for political asylum in the past 10 years have had their applications turned down; and what are the most frequent reasons given for their asylum application. [HL9316]

Reply from the Minister of State, Home Office (Baroness Browning): The information is not available as cohort information on asylum covering the time period of 2001 to 2010 is not available. However, the total number of initial decisions which were refusals of asylum, humanitarian protection, discretionary leave or exceptional leave to remain between 2001 and 2010 were 11,365 for nationals of India and 4,175 for nationals of Jamaicans. These initial decisions do not reflect applications made in the same period.

Information relating to asylum cases is recorded on the UK Border Agency (UKBA) case information database (CID). Information concerning the grounds for asylum claims is not routinely captured on CID. It is therefore not possible to identify the basis for asylum claims without undertaking a manual case by case search of individual case files.

Further information on asylum is available from the Control of Immigration publications available in the Library of the House and the Home Office Science website at <http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/science-research/research-statistics>.

Westminster Early Day Motion

Mark Hendrick (1846) Slavery and Human Trafficking - That this House commemorates the first meeting of the Society for Effecting the Abolition of the Slave Trade, which took place on 22 May 1787; notes the invaluable work of members of the Society, in particular Thomas Clarkson, who were instrumental in raising the public's awareness of the inhumane practice of slavery; recognises the extraordinary work of the Society in campaigning to end the slave trade within the British Empire, which culminated in the Slave Trade Act 1807; further notes with regret that over two centuries since the Act was passed, at least 12 million people around the world remain enslaved today according to the United Nations' estimate; further notes that sexual exploitation and forced prostitution, bonded labour and domestic servitude are key features of contemporary slavery; further recognises that human trafficking is the modern version of the slave trade; and calls on the Government to use every tool at its disposal to fight the root causes of slavery and to prosecute those who participate in enslaving or trafficking vulnerable individuals into the UK.

Parliamentary Questions

Female Genital Mutilation

Lord Jones of Cheltenham: To ask Her Majesty's Government how many countries permit female genital mutilation; and what initiatives are planned by (a) the United Kingdom, (b) the European Union, and (c) the United Nations to encourage those countries to outlaw the practice. [HL8978]

Reply from the Minister of State, Home Office (Baroness Browning): The Home Office does not hold this information centrally and cannot comment on behalf of the EU or UN.

The Government regard female genital mutilation (FGM) as an unacceptable form of child abuse and violence against girls and women that the Government are committed to eradicating.

FGM has been a criminal offence in this country since 1985. The FGM Act 2003 replaced the 1985 Act in England, Wales and Northern Ireland and made it an offence for the first time for UK nationals or permanent UK residents to carry out FGM abroad, or to aid, abet, counsel or procure the carrying out of FGM abroad.

Legislation alone cannot eliminate the practice so our resources will be aimed at raising awareness of the law on FGM and the health implications with communities and front-line practitioners.

Prevention is at the heart of the Government's approach. In February 2011 we launched multi-agency practice guidelines for front-line professionals such as teachers, GPs and nurses. The guidelines aim to raise awareness of FGM, highlight the risks that people should be aware of and set out clearly the steps that should be taken to safeguard children and women from this abuse.

Communications about FGM are key to bringing the issue to more people's attention. More than 40,000 leaflets and 40,000 posters have been circulated to schools, health services, charities and community groups around the United Kingdom.

Funding Opportunities

 new or updated this week

UK Government Equalities Office: Progress Funding

Closing date for applications: 8 June 2011

The European Commission is inviting proposals from Member States for funding for national awareness-raising activities in support of the Community's anti-discrimination agenda. National authorities can nominate non-profit making organisations, e.g. an NGO or an equality body, to carry out activities on their behalf. In the UK the Government Equalities Office is the "national authority".

The PROGRESS programme is concerned with:

"Raising awareness, disseminating information and promoting the debate about the key challenges and policy issues in relation to discrimination and the mainstreaming of anti-discrimination in all Community policies, including among the social partners, NGOs and other stakeholders."

Each national authority can present one or two projects. Activities must start in 2011, and can have up to 80% of total eligible costs financed. The remainder of the costs are to be found from other sources.

For more information see

The Scottish Council of Jewish Communities (SCoJeC) is the representative body of all the Jewish communities in Scotland. It advances public understanding about the Jewish religion, culture and community, and also works in partnership with other organisations to promote good relations and understanding among community groups and to promote equality. (Scottish Charity SC029438) <http://www.scojec.org/>

BEMIS is the Scottish national Ethnic Minorities led umbrella body, supporting, empowering, and building the capacity of minority third sector community organisations. As a strategic partner with Government, it is proactive in influencing the development of race equality policy in Scotland, and helps develop and progress multicultural Scotland, active citizenship, democracy, and Human Rights Education at the Scottish, UK, and European levels. <http://www.bemis.org.uk/index.html>

The Scottish Government is committed to promoting equality of opportunity and social justice for all those who live in Scotland. One Scotland is the Scottish Government campaign designed to tackle racism. It aims to raise awareness of racist attitudes, highlight its negative impact and recognise the valuable contributions that other cultures have made to our society – and make Scotland no place for racism. <http://www.scotlandagainstracism.com/>
