Immigration and Asylum

Scottish Parliament Oral Answers

Scottish Visa

Richard Lyle (SNP): In light of the widespread criticism by Scottish industry and employers of the United Kingdom Government's immigration proposals, will the First Minister outline what response UK ministers have made to proposals for a Scottish visa?

Reply from the First Minister (Nicola Sturgeon): Shamefully, UK ministers have at this stage dismissed out of hand the constructive proposals that the Scottish Government has made on a Scottish visa. The proposals on immigration that were published yesterday are wrong in principle. They brand as low-skilled people who care for us in our care homes and hospitals, farm our land, process our fish, build our houses and look after our tourists in our restaurants and hotels, and imply that those people are not welcome here. That is shocking and shameful, and it should be opposed.

The UK Government's proposals are also devastating for the future of our economy. Our demographics mean that we need to continue to attract people here, and those proposals will make it much harder. The proposals will make Scotland poorer in future. They are the biggest risk to our economic prosperity that we face. I read in the newspapers this morning that the Scottish Tories are "livid" about the proposals, and so they should be. However, rather than being quietly livid, should the Scottish Tories not be standing up for Scotland and doing something about it?

Asylum Seekers (Right to Vote)

Andy Whightman (Green): I am pleased that the First Minister agrees that the language and the policy on immigration from the United Kingdom Government this week have been deeply damaging. Does she agree that it would be a clear signal that Scotland is more welcoming if we gave those who seek asylum here the right to vote through the Scottish Elections (Franchise and Representation) Bill, which we will consider today?

Reply from the First Minister (Nicola Sturgeon): Obviously, Parliament will debate those issues later this afternoon. The Scottish Government has set out its careful and considered position on that. We come from the perspective of wanting asylum seekers to be welcomed here and given the right to work here and play a full part in our society. We carefully consider all those issues.

I am proud that, in Scotland, we have—I hope—cross-party consensus that, generally speaking, the people who live here, no matter where they come from, should have the right to vote in our elections and to make a full contribution to the kind of country that we are and the one that we want to be.

Scottish Parliament Motions

S5M-20972 John Mason (SNP): Points-based Immigration System – That the Parliament notes with dismay the points-based immigration system that the UK Government has proposed; challenges the notion that the 8.5 million economically inactive people in the UK could or should be put to work, given that this group includes disabled people, and considers this an attack on people's right to social security; believes that the 70 points required would be a barrier to many people who could offer skills and employment to the benefit of the Scottish economy; understands that, under the current proposal, the UK Government has created some flexibility around jobs in occupations that are deemed to have a shortage, but questions whether the UK Government understands the needs of the Scottish economy and whether it would relax immigration visas for those seeking work in a sector in Scotland that is experiencing a shortage where no such shortage exists at the UK level, and calls on the UK Government to devolve immigration powers to Scotland so that the Scottish Parliament and Scottish Government can seek to design an immigration system that works for Scotland.

S5M-20961 Patrick Harvie (Green): 1,000 Bikes for Refugees – That the Parliament recalls motion S5M-03605, which was lodged in January 2017 and celebrated the charity, Bikes for Refugees (Scotland), on its achievement of giving 100 donated and refurbished bicycles to asylum seekers and refugees; applauds the project further on the news that, on 19 February 2020, it gave out its 1,000th bike; acknowledges that the bikes are both a symbol of friendship and are of hugely practical benefit, enabling people to travel freely, participate in the life of their community and maintain a social life; thanks all who have made donations, including members of the public, universities, housing associations, ScotRail and Police Scotland; applauds the charity's volunteers, many of whom themselves are refugees and asylum seekers, and believes that, without their longstanding commitment, this extraordinary positive impact could not have been achieved.

UK Parliament, House of Commons Written Answers

Immigration: EU Nationals

Seema Malhotra (Labour Co-op) [648] To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, how many applications for Indefinite Leave to Remain on the grounds of long residency her Department received in each month over the last two years; and how many of those applications submitted prior to 30 June 2019 are yet to be processed.

Reply from Kevin Foster: We do not publish this data for this specific group of applicants but as per the In-Country migration statistics published in August 2019, 98.2% of settlement applications were decided within the six-month service standard. This figure will include applications made by those seeking Indefinite Leave to Remain on the grounds of long residency.

The data can be found here:

Asylum: Deportation

Scott Benton (Conservative) [682] To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, how many failed asylum seekers have been deported in each of the last 10 years.

Reply from Kevin Foster: The Home Office publishes data on returns from the UK in the

<https://www.gov.uk/government/collections/immigration-statistics-quarterly-release>

Data on the number of returns, by year, type of return and asylum and non-asylum related returns are published in table Ret_05.

Asylum-related returns relate to cases where there has been an asylum claim at some stage prior to the return. This will include asylum seekers whose asylum claims have been refused, and who have exhausted any rights of appeal, those returned under third country provisions, as well as those granted asylum/protection, but removed for other reasons (such as criminality). Therefore not all 'asylum' cases will relate to failed asylum seekers.

The term 'deportations' refers to a legally-defined subset of returns which are enforced either following a criminal conviction or when it is judged a person's removal from the UK is conducive to the public good. Information on those deported is not separately available and therefore the published statistics refer to all enforced returns. The latest data relates to the year ending September 2019.

Information on future Home Office statistical release dates can be found in the

Asylum: Deportation

Scott Benton (Conservative) [683] To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, what steps her Department is taking to locate failed asylum seekers who have absconded prior to deportation.

Reply from Kevin Foster: The Home Office takes a number of steps to re-establish contact with Failed Asylum Seekers (FAS) who have absconded. Our dedicated tracing team conducts a full range of checks which cannot be detailed for security reasons.

Scottish Parliament Motion

S5M-20955: Adam Tomkins (Conservative) Everyone Anyone Charter Launch – That the Parliament applauds Rangers FC on the launch of a new Fans Charter, which is an extension of its diversity and inclusion campaign, “Everyone Anyone”; welcomes that the Charter emphasises the importance of fans setting a positive example at matches and highlights that, as ambassadors for the club, fans must be respectful, tolerant and inclusive at all times and that there can be no place for bigotry, racism, sectarianism or homophobia at football matches; acknowledges that the Charter encourages respect to be shown to supporters or groups who share different views or beliefs and for fans to be an ally to those who may experience discrimination; congratulates the Club on highlighting how the use of language impacts on others, and commends it for proactively encouraging fans to report such behaviour if witnessed as a means of making everyone feel safe, welcome and wanted at Rangers' matches.

Racism, Religious Hatred, and Discrimination

UK Parliament, House of Lords Written Answer

Football: Racial Discrimination

Lord Bourne of Aberystwyth (Conservative) [HL1308] To ask Her Majesty's Government how they supporting work to combat racism at football grounds (1) with the English Football League, and (2) more generally.

Reply from Baroness Barran: Racism or any form of discrimination has no place in football or society, and we must confront this vile behaviour.

The Government supports the steps the football authorities, including the English Football League, have taken for the current season to combat discrimination. This included actions targeted at and around football grounds such as: improving reporting systems; providing better training and support for referees and stewards; and improving the quality of CCTV around stadia.

However it is clear there is more to do. The Minister for Sport recently held meetings with both the English Football League and the Football Association in which he discussed their action on discrimination. He has asked the football authorities to report back with a more detailed update about their work on this important issue before considering future government support.

Female Genital Mutilation

Baroness Bennett of Manor Castle (Green) [HL1434] To ask Her Majesty's Government, further to the answer by Baroness Sugg on 6 February (HL Deb, col 1885), how many claims for asylum have been made by (1) women and girls at risk of female genital mutilation (FGM), and (2) anti-FGM campaigners, in each of the last 10 years; and how many such claims (a) have been accepted, (b) have been rejected, and (c) are awaiting a decision.

Reply from Baroness Williams of Trafford: The Home Office does not record the basis of claims in a way that can be easily aggregated so cannot provide figures on how many asylum claims have been made by (1) women and girls at risk of female genital mutilation (FGM), and (2) anti-FGM campaigners, in each of the last 10 years; and how many such claims (a) have been accepted, (b) have been rejected, and (c) are awaiting a decision.
